

4. Autumn Fire Prevention Action Week (Thurs 9 Nov- Wed 15 Nov)

Inquiries: Fire Prevention Division ☎054-280-0190

As the days get colder, we become more likely to use fire. As the air gets drier, we need to beware of fire disasters. The slightest carelessness with regards to cigarettes or the stove can result in a house fire. In this event, a smoke detector is your greatest ally, warning you immediately of the danger. Do you have smoke detectors in your house? Do you carry out the necessary regular maintenance? Old smoke detectors may not work properly due to deterioration or the batteries running out. In addition to regular maintenance, you should aim to get a new smoke detector about once every 10 years.

Instructions for inspecting your smoke detector (Japanese):

119 Day (Thurs 9 Nov)

Inquiries: Dispatch Division ☎054-280-0120

119 is the emergency number for fire, medical, and rescue services (police is 110) in Japan. Please call 119 immediately in an emergency. This also works from mobile phones without the need for a dialing code. For persons with hearing, visual, or speech impairments, there is NET119, Telephone Relay Service (both require advance registration), and FAX119 (dialing code not required).

Keep calm and convey the following information:

- Where (place of the incident)
- What happened and who was involved (a person collapsed, there's a fire in my house, etc.)
- The current situation
